COLLEGE OVERVIEW

We are a diverse, interdisciplinary college that offers more programs of study than any other college at UT. Students have the opportunity and flexibility to tailor a degree program based on your interests and career goals, which professional advisors and faculty mentors can help fine-tune as you work towards earning a degree.

TOP AREAS OF STUDY

A Focus on Real-World Problem Solving

- Our sustainability major engages students in understanding the interconnections between society and the environment. Sociology majors learn about social justice and how to critically analyze social trends. Students in biology can choose from ecology, molecular biology, and microbiology as a focus area.

Pre-Professional Training

- Interested in pursuing a professional health or law program after completing your undergraduate degree? Our college advisors are here to help you explore your options and prepare for your career in law or health.

Award-Winning Humanities Faculty

- UT is ranked ninth in the nation for National Endowment for the Humanities awards, including a new digital humanities initiative that integrates humanities with computer science to open new ways of doing humanities research.

Trailblazing Programs

- Our new Department of Africana Studies – one of three in the SEC – focuses on the African Diaspora across the world.

APPLICATION REQUIREMENTS

All students who intend to Major in one of our BA or BM programs must audition or interview with the School of Music. Applications for the minor may be required to audition depending on the program. For detailed application information please visit <https://app.getacceptd.com/utkmusic>.

The rest of the programs in the College of Arts and Sciences follow the University wide admissions requirements.
